Good Access Is Good Business Restaurant Access Guide

Why Good Access Is Good Business

More than three and a half million Australians – around 19% of our population (source ABS 1998) have a physical, intellectual, sensory, psychiatric or other disability. This figure increases to about 35% of our population if you include people with temporary disabilities resulting from accident, sporting injuries or illness. Improving access to business and traders for people with disabilities will result in economic, commercial and social benefits for Australia.

Many people who are restricted in their daily lives by a disability rely on family, carers and companions to support and accompany them. Some estimates suggest that disability directly and regularly impacts on one in four members of the community. They will choose their shopping and business destinations according to the ease of access and quality of service provided.

By providing 'access for all', business owners and traders are expanding their markets to a much broader customer base. In addition, they are meeting the legal obligations under anti-discrimination legislation.

For restaurant operators, the concept is simple – the easier the access is to your restaurant, the more customers you will attract.

The Good Access Is Good Business – Restaurant Access Guide will inform potential customers, both residents and visitors in Latrobe City, of the level of access to restaurants. We anticipate that many people will use the guide when making group bookings to ensure all members of their group will enjoy the dining experience.

How to use the Guide

For each restaurant listed in this guide, a number of access features are described. These include:

- Location of nearest accessible parking space
- Entrance to restaurant
- Circulation space within the restaurant
- Access to toilet facilities
- Counter height
- Lighting
- Access to facilities within the restaurant.
